++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning cooler and more unsettled with some wet, windy weather.

Today:
Still some fine, warm weather in southern and eastern areas, after early fog and low cloud lifts. Isolated heavy afternoon showers in southeastern areas. Northwest Britain turning windy, with some heavy, squally bursts of rain, and cooler by evening.

Tonight:
Band of heavy rain and squally winds crossing most remaining areas, although the far southeast staying dry. Clearer, cooler weather following to the west and north, with scattered heavy showers.

Monday:
Rain and gusty winds across eastern areas, clearing all but Shetland by lunchtime. Sunny spells following but also scattered heavy shower especially towards the west. Feeling noticeably cooler and fresher.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Unsettled with rain or showers, some heavy with hail and thunder at times. Windy with gales in places. Temperatures around or slightly below average.
